

Welcome, thank you for trialling my Racing To Profit Members Club.

At the end of this email you can find details regarding your log in information , for future reference.

Please note that ALL Members Content is delivered via the blog within your members' area. This is NOT an email service.

Members' Posts are complete by 10am on the day of racing Monday-Friday, 11am at weekends. I endeavour to get the main stats content posted the evening before racing, usually by 6pm. I usually add the morning prices next to stats qualifiers at around 8am on the day of racing, and will post any of my tips between 8.30-10am Monday to Friday, by 11am at weekends. You know a post is complete when you read '(complete)' in the post title. I try to take Sunday's off, so Monday's content can, at times, all follow first thing on Monday morning.

You can log into your members area using your username and password. You can do this to the right hand side of the home page www.racingtoprofit.co.uk

If you are on mobile you can click on a members post, and will be redirected to log in.

**

This email is worth reading in it's entirety first

This club may be unlike anything you have trialed before, combing a mix of my unique stats research, systems, strategies, tipping, general discussion, a great community (with some very good tipsters in their own right, better than me!) and much more.

The following email is your introduction and with any luck helps you get the most out of your trial period. Please do take the time to read it.

VIDEO: I have recorded a video preview which you may enjoy watching instead of reading the following! :)

You can watch HERE>>>

Where Should You Start?

1. Log in and familiarise yourself with the daily Members' posts and specifically The Key, found in each daily members post. In effect it's about finding the best way to use my content to suit you...
2. You can use the list of stats qualifiers in section 1 (or the test zone in section 3) as a starting point to finding your own bets and/or also follow some 'advised strategies', as 'systems'. More detailed information which explains all of the below in more depth, follows on from this summary.
3. If deciding to follow any of the strategies I would start with: -
 - a. The Jumps: S1 , S2A, S3A#, and w1
 - b. Initially, at around 8-8.30am on the day of racing, you can just look for those four symbols above. In time you'll get to know what underpins them and can use the evening post the day before to back them if you wish.
 - c. Please refer to 'The Strategies: where should you begin' link in the Key for further details/ ideas. You can also read that HERE>>>
 - d. Please refer to the 'advised strategies' links in the Key within the daily members posts for a further explanation as to what these are. It's important information but initially you can just wait until 8am on the day of racing when I add the 'S' symbols next to each horse in section 1, so you know which stats pick qualifies against which strategy, looking out for those numbers above.

- e. The aim is to create a +100 points a year portfolio from the systematic strategies, picking a handful that may suit you best. I wouldn't follow more than 4 at any one time. As of the end of November 2018 this portfolio of four jumps strategies was on +222 points. If you don't like bigger odds/longer losing runs, stick with S3A# and possibly w1. Those two are over +100 points between them for the year as I write.
4. These should provide a decent starting point, not too many bets (2-3 per day on average), and will allow you to feel your way in, IF you want some systems to follow. Nothing is rigid about my approach – it is about you finding a way to use my content in a way that suits you and makes you enjoy your racing. This can take time, hence the length of trial periods. a/b/c above will make sense when reading more of the intro material. All of this will make sense when in the members' posts and after having read the into material.
 5. Always start betting small, don't dive in. Many of my Members bet in £2.50s, £5s and just love the game. There is plenty of time to build up stakes
 6. As a minimum I would recommend starting with a 150-200 point bank. If starting betting in £2s this means you should have at least £300 set aside that you are willing to lose. There are no guarantees in this game. Only by doing this and having a long term mindset will you be successful in racing, whether in my Club or elsewhere.
 7. In Section 2 of the daily members posts I 'tip', sifting through my stats qualifiers to see if there is anything I wish to tip, as well as using any other information available to me. The main tipping focus from me are the 'Big Race/Festival' tips which are +150 points this year.
 8. The Members' Comments - i'm lucky to have built up a loyal following including a handful of very good punters who put up their own selections in the comments. Take your time to read through those and in time you may end up following one or two of them. I would start with Nick Mazur (+496 points as of end Nov 2018) and COLINS BETS (he's around +100 points to SP, much bigger to BOG) Those are two options, but there are many others who chip in and are doing well. Those two have been posting for the longest. But there's always something of interesting in the comments to flick through.

VERY IMPORTANT INFORMATION

What follows is a detailed introduction to my Members' Club, what you can expect and how you can engage with the content. Please to take some time to flick through the following...

With the Winter Season Ticket, purchased through ClickBank, you have a full 60 days from point of purchase in order to process a full refund - so, you have that time to see if it's for you. I won't be offended if it isn't. With the old trial I used to run, for around 7 weeks, around 30% would stay after, and most haven't left as yet! :)

There are over 280 members who have been with me for at least 16 months, since the beginning of the Club. 370 in total now. These members have found that my content, and the community I have created, has added to their enjoyment of racing. They have found a way to make my content work for them. Your challenge is to do the same, and I am here to help you do that.

However, if you're after a quick fix you will not find it here. Sorry. This is a bloody tough game and only those who have patience survive long term. There are many ups and downs, that is the reality. My job is to ensure we have more ups, back a few nice winners, come out ahead over time, and have some fun.

If you are willing to make my approach work for you in the long term you will be successful. But it can take time. If you dive in too deeply and start betting more than you should, you will fail to succeed. I learnt that lesson the hard way. (I lost £2650 in my first year at University following a 'tipster', betting too much, too soon and was unprepared to lose the 'advised bank'. They were clearly rubbish but it hurt, and I learnt plenty from then on. Maxing out two overdrafts for the next 3 years was the consequence. Always start betting small and be prepared to lose any recommended bank)

With my focus on trainer behaviour and stats I've found an approach that will help you enjoy this sport more than ever. My content finds regular decent priced winners and gives you plenty to get stuck into.

I provide strategies that you can just follow blind but also 'starting points' – horses that qualify against my research. I, and many of my members, are on a punting journey where we all want to improve. You/we can always improve.

The aim is to have some fun and win some money along the way. Many of my members get the most satisfaction from using my information alongside their own opinions to decide what to back, how to back them, and how much to have on.

I'm confident you will enjoy your experience. I am as open and honest as I can be. All emails and comments on the blog posts are welcome. No question is too stupid. I work hard every day to make your experience the best it can be.

My Club is a bit different and patience may be required. It is probably best I talk through what you can find in each daily post. Some of this may seem a bit daunting at first but it is straight forward, once you get the hang of it.

... I provide horses that qualify against my various trainer stats research. We want to back as many decent priced winners as possible, while keeping the number of losers as low as possible. Easy! :)

(Important: Within each daily Members' post you will find the 'KEY'... this includes all the information you need to get going and make the most of your time here)

Each Members' Daily Post is split into 4 sections...

1.All Qualifiers Against Stats Pack/Ratings Pointers

- Here I post the qualifiers against my main stats packs, called Trainer Track Profiles (TTP) Jumps and TTP Summer Stats.
- These are trainer based stats based on their track record and my unique template. They are not based on the record of the horse. They are trainer based stats.
- These are the starting points. It is NOT Advised to back all qualifiers in this section.
- On each daily post you will find a 'KEY' – this explains what the different codes are next to each horse. These codes and ratings pointers are designed to get the best out of the starting set of qualifiers. Please refer to this Key in the daily posts.
- Each morning on the daily posts, to help with ease of reference, I add the generally available morning prices and the S symbols to indicate which strategy the horse qualifies against.

The latest update for these strategies can be found within the Key. Take some time to read through the links in the Key, specifically the advised strategies, and work out where you may wish to start. A decent starting point may be the below strategies, although some caution as to S2A as that isn't for the faint hearted. It's a profitable big odds approach but does mean there will be long losing runs.

- a. The Jumps: S1 , S2A, S3A#, w1

2.Any Tips/Notes (Daily Tips/Festival Tips/other thoughts)

- In this section I post my own subjective Tips using all of the information available to my and the tools I use, starting with all of the stats qualifiers in the daily posts, as a 'starting point'. I suppose this is the 'tipping' element of the daily posts and i give reasoning for why I may really like something. There is a running total for my Daily Tips You may wish to follow those also and I'm testing picking out the 'best of' my stats picks. My daily tips are a bit up and down unlike my Big Race tips...

- You can also find my 'Big Race/Festival' tips in this section also, usually focusing on the big Festivals through the year, as well as the odd big Saturday handicap. I seem to do better in big races than with the daily tips.

3. Micro System Test Zone

- I am testing a few micro angles exclusively for Members. The research for these can be found in the 'Key', within the daily posts. You are free to use this info anyway you please.

4. Any general messages/updates etc

- Here I comment on anything else of interest, any 'parish notices'.
- I also use this section for my unique 'Big Meeting Notes'. Here I find trainer angles for big meetings. So far this season these have included the Dante Meeting, Chester's May Meeting, Royal Ascot and the Irish Derby Festival. In the coming weeks there will be notes for many other big meetings.
- Again you are free to use this information however you please.
- Members from time to time will request that I go 'through the card' for them when they are off racing. Provided I have enough notice, I'm happy to flick through and add my views etc.
- The Cheltenham Festival is a feature week on the blog, all members' only, there are stats/trends galore and my own tips, focussing on 13 target races inc all 10 handicaps. There is also plenty of focus on Aintree, Punchestown and Galway later in the summer.

**

To re-cap...

Where Should You Start?

Watch my welcome video HERE>>>

1. Log in and familiarise yourself with the daily Members' posts and specifically The Key, found in each daily members post. In effect it's about finding the best way to use my content to suit you...
2. You can use the list of stats qualifiers in section 1 (or the test zone in section 3) as a starting point to finding your own bets and/or also follow some 'advised strategies', as 'systems'. More detailed information which explains all of the below in more depth, follows on from this summary.
3. If deciding to follow any of the strategies I would start with: -
 - a. The Jumps: S1 , S2A, S3A#, w1
 - b. Please refer to 'The Strategies: where should you begin' link in the Key for further details/ ideas. You can also read that HERE>>>
 - c. Please refer to the 'advised strategies' links in the Key within the daily members posts for a further explanation as to what these are. It's important information but initially you can just wait until 8am on the day of racing when I add the 'S' symbols next to each horse in section 1, so you know which stats pick qualifies against which strategy, looking out for those numbers above.
 - d. The aim is to create a +100 points a year portfolio from the systematic strategies, picking a handful that may suit you best. I wouldn't follow more than 4 at any one time.
4. These should provide a decent starting point, not too many bets, and will allow you to feel your way in, IF you want some systems to follow. Nothing is rigid about my approach – it is about you finding a way to use my content in a way that suits you and makes you enjoy your racing. This can take time, hence the length of trial periods. a/b/c above will make sense when reading more of the intro material. All of this will make sense when in the members' posts and after having read the into material.

5. Always start betting small, don't dive in. Many of my Members bet in £2.50s, £5s and just love the game. There is plenty of time to build up stakes
6. As a minimum I would recommend starting with a 150-200 point bank. If starting betting in £2s this means you should have at least £300 set aside that you are willing to lose. There are no guarantees in this game. Only by doing this and having a long term mindset will you be successful in racing, whether in my Club or elsewhere.
7. In Section 2 of the daily members posts I 'tip', sifting through my stats qualifiers to see if there is anything I wish to tip, as well as using any other information available to me. There are also 'Festival Tips' in this section, mainly focussing on Jumps racing.
8. The Members' Comments - i'm lucky to have built up a loyal following including a handful of very good punters who put up their own selections in the comments. Take your time to read through those and in time you may end up following one or two of them.

I produce a lot of research articles over time including a monthly research article for Members. You can find a repository of all these HERE>>>

My Members' Club is a bit different. My content finds decent priced winners and I am confident you will find an approach that works for you. This club allows you to bet systematically, follow my tips and also use your own opinions. I think it's a good blend which will help you enjoy your racing. You can follow the odd systematic approach or dip in and out whenever you wish.

Some view their membership like a magazine subscription, as many enjoy reading through the content and the thoughts of other members in the comments.

With any luck you like what you find and will be around for many years to come. If you wish to make your racing pay I am confident my club will help you do just that, or make it even more profitable than it is now. But not to sound like a broken record, it takes time. And whatever approach you take to this game there will be losing runs. I hope you are prepared for that. Profit/enjoyment is the main thing, not the number of winners.

There is a great community and every day some fascinating comments to read from fellow members. A few of them, like Nick M, are very good tipsters and following his selections has won members +496 points in 2018. Madness. He is not alone and in time you may wish to engage with other content posted by members, or even put up your own fancies. There is a lot of profit to be mined over on my blog.

To finish, I won't be offended if it isn't for you, but please have an open mind and give it a good shot. If you stay around for any amount of time you'll have fun and make long term profits :) You can't fail to win money over time at RTP.

**

If you have any questions you can post a comment on the blog or email me: info@racingtopprofit.co.uk

Enjoy your time in your club,

All the best

Josh

And please also note what follows...

Your username is below for your records.

Please keep this safe in case you ever have trouble logging in.

Your User ID: %user.login%

There is a lost password function on the log in box and you will need this username or your email address if you ever forget it. As always if you have any problems do not hesitate to email me:
info@racingtoprofit.co.uk
